CHRISTMAS WISHES to our HEROES OVERSEAS INC.

Non-Profit Organization in Service to our Troops

A Non-profit Organization in service to our Troops since 2013 -
100% Goes to Our Heroes!
WE SUPPORT OUR TROOPS!

WHO WE ARE

- ★ We fundraise and send Christmas care packages to Our soldiers overseas for the holidays, and to a lesser extent needed requested items year around!
- ★ We can't forget our Heroes and need your support!
- ★ We learned over the years that we can help more than double the number of soldiers with a better volume of products if we send orders via direct online with free shipping to the APO Addresses because of the higher shipping costs at the USPS for international shipping.
- ★ If you have a loved one serving overseas, e-mail us their information so we can get Care Packages to them first. We will serve Local Heroes first!
- ★ Due to the delay in international shipping, we will have our open Event this Year as early as Nov. 19th and 20th from 2pm until 6pm

Dave Langfries
"The Outdoor Insider"

I checked in with Pete at the store at Mar Don Resort, and he said there are people out ice fishing in the area. Some of the smaller lakes in the Seep Lakes Wildlife Area are frozen and people are catching everything from perch to largemouth bass through the ice. Also, there are people out on Lind Coulee. I recall several years ago when the Coulee had a good thick layer of ice, and the perch fishing was very good. Pete mentioned that the lower end of Lind Coulee, actually off the mouth of the Coulee at Perch Point has open water, but further up is where anglers are drilling their holes. Soda Lake, which is the first lake below O'Sullivan Dam, is also frozen and that one can produce good catches of perch and even walleye. I heard from my fishing buddy who had traveled to Scooteney Reservoir that perch fishing is hot, and everyone is catching bunches of them. However, the perch are small. He had hoped to catch some walleye while they were there but had no luck. His group were going to give Soda Lake a try. He called me later to say that he didn't feel comfortable go-

The sudden shift from below zero to daytime temperatures into the mid-30s has created some interesting conditions for anglers here in Central Washington. Lakes in the Columbia Basin that had a thick layer of ice may have thawed. It would be a very good idea to check to see how many inches of ice are on your favorite lake before walking out too far to drill a hole. One

My buddy Austin Moser has been guiding on Rufus Woods for triploids for the last couple of years, and no one puts more big trout in the fish box than he does. So, when I want to know how the fishing is up there, he's the guy I call. When I talked to him earlier this week he reported that fishing is going great at the net pens. He consistent-

I am sure that many of you know that the Colville Tribal Hatchery at Bridgeport is making a big contribution to our salmon fisheries on the upper Columbia River. I still hear about people complaining about seeing the purse seiner operating in the mouth of the Okanogan River.

They don't realize that the tribe is gathering brood stock for their hatchery. I got an update on what the hatchery is doing and wanted to share it. The number of eggs in incubation: CJH Spring Chinook – 904,211 eyed eggs. MetComp Spring Chinook – approximately 240,000 eyed eggs. Segregated Summer Chinook – approximately 892,000 eggs. Integrated Summer Chinook – approximately 1,124,650 eggs. The number of fry transported to acclimation ponds: Similkameen Pond: 367,527 integrated summer chinook were transported from October 24 - November 1. Riverside Pond: 235,240 MetComp spring chinook were transported from November 7 – November 15. Brooks Tract Pond: 138,439 integrated summer chinook were transported from November 16 – November 21. All of us who fish the upper Columbia benefit from the releases of summer Chinook, and the prospect of spring Chinook fisheries is the future is very exciting.

I am not sure what I will be doing in the way of fishing in the coming week, but I will keep you posted, and maybe see you out there.

Come see why we are eastern washington's recreation capital!

CAT OF THE WEEK

Hi! I'm Zan, and I am looking for my forever home! I've been told I am a sweet boy. I love to sit with my human fosters while they engage with the social media and gaming consoles. I really enjoy their laps while they are stationary, whether bedtime or bingeing movies. I love to play and I get along well with the cats in the home. My foster mom gives me pedicures, which I allow.

Brush Up On Pet Dental Health

Companionship, unconditional love and security are just some of the perks of pet ownership.

People who bring pets into their homes understand that a certain commitment comes with becoming a pet owner. Pet owners recognize they need to provide food, shelter and basic health-care for their pets, but they may not recognize the role dental health plays in helping pets be as healthy as possible.

The American Animal Hospital Association notes that dental disease can start early in a pet's life. By the age of three, most dogs and cats will have some level of dental disease. If dental disease is left untreated, pets may suffer from inflammation, infection and even chronic pain.

The animal health and wellness site VetStreet says that more than 70 percent of cats and dogs over age four are affected by periodontal disease. Bacteria from poor dental health may spread to other organs and cause illnesses. Recognizing the signs of pet dental disease and taking steps to alleviate it can keep pets healthy.

- Acknowledge bad breath. Bad breath is not something that comes with the territory of having a pet. Odor from a dog or cat's mouth may indicate a problem such as stomatitis, a common feline condition that causes inflammation to the oral tissues and gums.
- Start brushing pets' teeth. Brushing a pet's teeth can promote good oral health and potentially prevent serious problems along the way. Always use a pet-safe toothpaste, and talk to a veterinarian about a special dental diet.
- Invest in other dental products. Seek products that receive the approval of the Veterinary Oral Health Council to help maintain a pet's oral hygiene. Avoid products like synthetic bones, antlers and other animal bones, which can fracture an animal's teeth.
- Work with your veterinarian. Vets typically use X-rays to diagnose dental disease, as teeth may appear normal to the naked eye but still be diseased. Anesthesia is frequently used in dental evaluations and cleanings. It makes it safer and less stressful for the animal and the vet. Speak with your vet about the frequency of dental cleanings and care, asking any questions you may have about the safety and efficacy of anesthesia use.

Pet owners must prioritize their furry friends' oral health. Though often overlooked, pets' dental health is integral to their overall health.

DOG OF THE WEEK

Meet Grizzley! I'm not afraid to admit, that I'm a bit of a nut. I have so much energy that I could power a house with electricity! I'm very proud of this. The other dogs are pretty cool, I enjoy meeting and playing with them. Unless they are an alpha dog, then we just can't get along. I have always enjoyed chasing cats, they are just so fun to tease and run with. Man, I love squirrels....

CREATURE FEATURE BUTTERFLIES

Butterflies are beautiful insects, best known for their incredible metamorphosis from caterpillars, to chrysalises, to finally becoming butterflies. They are a favorite classroom pet for the very purpose of watching this transformation. But many people keep butterflies as pets not for educational purposes, but because of their colorful wings and how easy they are to care for. How easy? Some species don't even need to eat!

ADULT SIZE:
Depends on Species

HOW MANY:
Pairs or Groups

HABITAT:

Although there are many insect habitats available that are made of glass or plastic, an enclosure made out of mesh or netting is much easier for butterflies to move around in. If keeping a tropical species, make sure to maintain proper temperature and humidity.

NECESSITIES:

- Net or Mesh Enclosure as Large as is Possible for You to Have, Tall to Allow Flight
- Heat or Humidity if Needed for Species
- Food Cup Covered in Netting so Butterflies Don't Fall Into the Liquid

ACCESSORIES:

- Plants, Sticks & Other Decorations
