We have had some warm weather throughout the region, but it looks like that's going to change. At our home there is snow in the forecast for many days later into next week, so be prepared. I think I will plan to fish from shore on Lake Roosevelt to avoid the chance that I will be fishing in snow.

I mentioned in an earlier report that the Colville Tribe had a release of triploid rainbow trout scheduled for some time in February. My contact said there could be as many as 20,000 included in the release. I checked in with Austin Moser, who is fishing Rufus regularly right now, and he said that it has obviously occurred. It is common for the tribe to release fish weighing 1.5 to 1.7 pounds, but Austin said that these fish are more like 2.5 pounds. Now that's a nice trout, but many anglers are trying for fish much larger. I want to remind folks that the daily limit for trout on Rufus Woods is two fish, and if you are fishing with bait, you must keep every fish you catch, regardless of size. You can find the regulation on the Sport Fishing pamphlet on page 25. I also want to mention that you can have great success fishing with jigs for these fish and would suggest that you use these and pinch the barb, so you can legally release the fish. You may even want to target walleye. You will still get triploids and may add some nice walleye to your catch. This week's photo is from a trip with Austin on Rufus last year.

I have trolled downstream below the upper net pens many times with a bottom bouncer and spinners for walleye and caught walleye along with triploids. Since there are so many new fish in the system on Rufus I will use another method. Fishing with my brother Rick and Steve Goodfellow a while back we tried some of the Hyper Glide jigs made by Acme Tackle, and the walleye loved them and we caught trout on them, too. These jigs have a rattle and even "wings" that open up when the jig drops so they actually glide through the water.

Another very effective walleye jig is the Jigging Rap made by Rapala. This jig has wings on the bottom end of the jig so it will also glide through the water. They have a nice weight to them so it's easier to keep them vertical when drifting.

The first time that I fished with Austin for walleye on Rufus I got the first fish on a blade bait. Then Austin dug out some watermelon colored plastics and put them on a 3/8th ounce jig and that worked great. Last year we used these with a small stinger hook and that seemed to help increase our hook ups. The walleye from Rufus Woods are of exceptional quality, and it is not unusual to release several fish over 22 inches while getting our limits of five each.

I was in Moses Lake last week and the temperature was 50 degrees. On my way home I saw flight after flight of geese passing over. I ran over to Potholes in the area of Lind Coulee and Medicare Beach, and although the ice covered the water it is shrinking away from the shoreline, and I saw a pressure fracture that ran out as far as I could see. It won't be long until the warm weather and some wind clears the ice off. Spring fishing isn't here yet, but spring fever is rampant. Last fall the walleye fishing was very good on Potholes, and I have my fingers crossed for good fishing this spring. According to the net surveys conducted by the Department of Fish and Wildlife the highest percentage of walleye should fall in the 12 to 20 inch class and the next highest percentage could be 20 inches and larger. If I remember correctly, last fall my buddy Brian Neilson had limited with walleye that averaged 15 to 16 inches.

Something that is often overlooked is the terrific trout fishing on Potholes. Anglers who target trout, either from the shore or trolling, can expect to catch trout averaging 3 pounds. As soon as the water opens up you can expect to see anglers lining the shore on Medicare Beach, which is on the east side of Potholes. Most people will be casting slip sinker rigs baited with Power Bait or a marshmallow and nightcrawler. Others will be trolling along the west side from the State Park down to Mar Don Resort. Rapalas, either jointed or regular style work well to attract strikes from Potholes rainbow.

Although I wrote about this last week, I wanted to remind readers that long-time outdoor writer for the Yakima Herald, Rob Phillips, has published a four-book fictional series of the adventures of Luke McClain. This fish and game wildlife officer seems to get involved in investigating crimes that lead him outside the bounds of his regular duties, and Phillips does an excellent job of keeping readers glued to the pages of these novels.

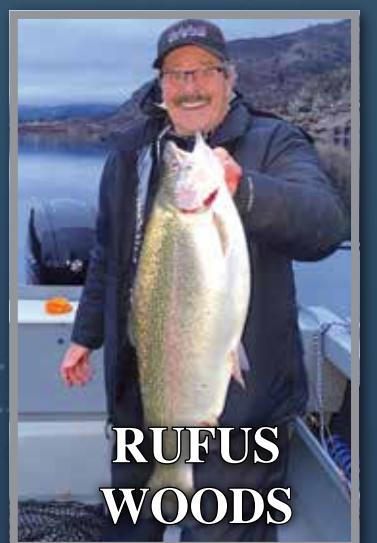

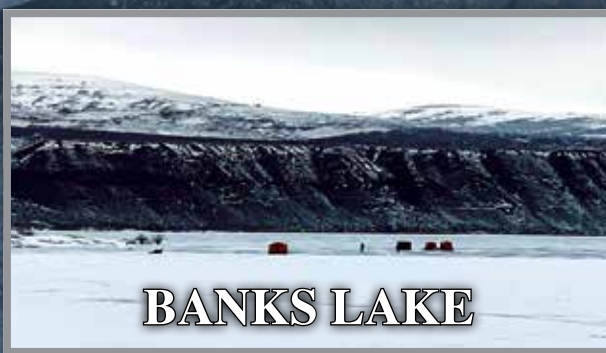

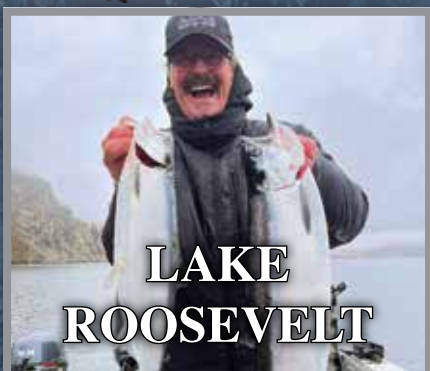

When I learned that Rob had published the books, I ordered the first one on Amazon. Before I had even finished the first one, I ordered the other three in the series. These are a very quick read, and I didn't want to have to wait to get the next one. I am an avid reader and found the Luke McClain character very real and compelling. I have known Rob for years and have to congratulate him on his excellent writing abilities. I would highly recommend that you give these books a read. I think you will be ordering the whole series like I did.

You may be able to meet Rob Phillips at the Central Washington Sportsman Show that starts on Friday, February 24th in Yakima. Rob often does seminars at this show, and you may also find him hanging out with the folks at the Yakima Bait booth.

I will be at the Central Washington Show on Saturday and Sunday. I will be with the crew from Bob Feil Boats and Motors. I like meeting people and talking boats and fishing at this show. So, if you make it there, be sure to look for me and say hi!

CREATURE FEATURE

PIRANHAS

Often portrayed as a vicious man-eater, the Piranha is becoming a staple in exotic aquariums across the world. Despite their fierce reputation, Piranhas are mostly scavengers. They will hunt for smaller fish or insects, eat plants, or take advantage of any carcasses in the water. The cases of them attacking humans or large and healthy animals are almost entirely fictional. Their teeth and bite are intimidating, but the Piranha is typically a docile pet.

In A Nutshell: Small Farm & Garden

by Andrew Ray

With the spring equinox (March 20th) on the horizon, I am going to use some of my last precious dormancy hours to introduce myself and this new monthly column. I am a gardener, an aspiring young farmer, and my landscaping work pays my bills. We'll see if we can add "half decent writer" to my resume.

The goal of this column is to share my gardening observations with a wider audience throughout the growing season. I'm also interested in the feedback I might get from inspired readers. I believe we have much to learn from each other. I have been working with plants since I was a young boy, and now as an adult I believe my work is just getting started. I love the feeling of having my hands in the dirt and the rewards of harvesting from the crops I tend to throughout the year. I have much knowledge to share, but still so much to learn.

Based out of Spokane, I have not had much snow removal work to do since the start of the new year. January and February provided some work cleaning up the leaves that reappeared when the December snows melted. Some deciduous leaves are still falling now. They seem to have become stuck to the trees when a snow came in October. The walnut trees I care for dropped their leaves with the snow, but other species seem to have held onto theirs for reasons that are beyond my scientific understandings.

Getting seeds started is one of the next things on my to do list. I know some folks have already started theirs, while others will be with me in the seed supply stores this month. When do you start your seeds, and why? I'm still learning the timings of gardening in this northern climate. My favorite vegetables to plant in my home garden are sweet corn and spicy peppers. I still have a few dried peppers on my kitchen counter that go into my tacos and onto my pizzas when I'm cooking and looking for a kick in the pants. A few dried ears of corn still linger in the pantry as well as I have been slowly feeding them to the pair of pheasants I keep. I still need to tidy my garden beds before outdoor planting season comes.

By the end of March I believe my days will be filled with landscaping work as my clients begin to tidy their yards up for spring. I'm looking to add team members to my landscaping business, as my calendar is overflowing with requests for me to work in peoples' yards. As much as I love tending to the gardens of others, I also feel the need to allocate my time to my small farm projects as well as fathering my two year old son. My farm work is focused on specialty crops that are not commonly grown in these northern climates. I would like to do more consulting to property owners who are interested in investing in the small-scale farming of specialty crops.

I am thankful that I have made the most of my time during this dormancy season and that I have avoided the seasonal depression that had plagued me in winters past. I'll give the credit for that to my new indoor plants, my woodworking hobby, and vitamin D supplements. I am eagerly awaiting the feeling of my shovel entering soil that has just thawed. I plan on applying horticulture oil to trees and pre-emergent herbicides to flower beds during March. I'm looking forward to that first flower I'll see, perhaps a crocus! Once that grass starts growing, I won't need much else to think about as I run from one yard to the next. I'm currently having to plan out a new irrigation system for an orchard I'll be planting in early May, but I'll try to not get too excited about irrigating season yet.

What would you like to see in this column? Do you have any questions for me? Please let me know if you have any ideas to help me grow my business. Good luck with those seeds! My email is: andrewray711@gmail.com

Gardening Tip of the Month:

Swap seeds with a friend! Whether you collect your own seeds, buy from a store, or order online, it's easy to get a surplus. Trading with a friend is a great way to promote your favorite plants and build gardening relationships with others.

FLOOD AND HIGH WIND SAFETY WSDOT

WET WEATHER DRIVING TIPS:

- Slow down
- Leave extra room between cars
- Allow extra time to reach destinations
- Turn on headlights
- Watch for water pooling on the roadway
- Turn off cruise control

6 INCHES

of water is enough to knock a person down and will stall most vehicles.

1 FOOT

of water can make you lose control of your vehicle.

2 FEET

of water can sweep a vehicle away — even SUVs and trucks.

Obey detour and closure signs. NEVER drive around a barricade.

HYDROPLANING RECOVERY

- Don't panic
- Avoid hard breaking and quick turns
- Ease off gas, lightly pump brakes (or use consistent pressure if ABS)

DOWNED POWER LINES

- Stay far away from downed power lines and call 911.
- Always assume a power line is live.
- Do not touch anything or anyone in contact with a fallen power line or other equipment.
- If a downed power line touches your car, stay inside. Honk your horn, roll down your window and call for help or call 911. Wait for fire department or utility workers to tell you it's safe to exit.
- If you must leave due to fire risk: remove loose clothing, jump clear of the vehicle so you're not touching the vehicle when you land; shuffle away without picking up your feet.

Can't see the road, don't drive through the water.

If floodwaters surround your car but the water is not moving, abandon your car, seek high ground and call for help. If water is moving, do not leave your car.

TURN AROUND, DON'T DROWN

Do not drive or walk through standing water if you can't tell how deep it is. Water hides missing or washed out pieces of road.
