Fishing Magician

Dave Dorrance

Reach Dave @ www.FishingMagician.com or FishBoy@nwi.net "The Outdoor Insider"

You've got to love this weather. Mid 40s in February? I like it. I am going get my boat ready and take advantage of the mild winter and get out on the water. Where to go first is the question. There are a bunch of good options, and I can't wait to try a few. Until then, I explored some of the bank fishing opportunities in the region.

I decided to check out Billy Clapp Lake instead of fishing in the rain the other day. I know people were fishing from the shore there. This reservoir is drawn down in the winter, and the water is quite a distance from the end of the boat ramp. The trout fishing in the winter can be so good at Billy Clapp that people will drive across the sand and launch small boats. When I arrived, I spotted an angler parked at the water's edge with a couple of rods out, so I drove down to see how he was doing. He had only got one bite, but he saw a huge rainbow swim by right next to shore. So, he knew there were some big ones out there. Billy Clapp seems to have two distinct populations of trout. In the spring we catch rainbow that are about 14 to 16 inches, which are probably the result of the previous year's plant. Then there are carryovers that weight from 3 to 5 pounds. Sometimes there are quite a few of them.

I was headed up to Coulee Dam to check on some of the fishing and was curious to see to if there were still any ice fishermen out at the bottom end of the lake. I was relieved to see there were no ice shacks out there, and I didn't see any sign of recent activity. If you are familiar with the fraternity of anglers that like to fish for whitefish on Banks, you know these guys will be looking for another way to get at them. I turned into the Northrup boat launch to see if the ice had cleared off. I found a thin sheen of ice at the ramp and about 30 feet out a band of what appeared to be just slush. The wind had come up and it wasn't going to be cold enough to freeze that evening, so I figured it wouldn't last long. I stopped by there again on my way home the next day and all that was left was a bunch of slush. You can bet that there will be people launching boats here very soon. The ice is off the north end, and I saw one boat out there.

I spent the evening in Coulee Dam recently, at the Grand Coulee Center Lodge. This is a great place to stay. I booked my room and got a call back in about five minutes. The person at the desk forgot to ask me if was bringing a boat. They always save space for boaters in the parking area, and you can charge your boat mount electric motor overnight. When I checked in at the front desk the person there told me a guest said he landed a 23-pound triploid earlier in the week and went back out and got a 26-pounder the next day! So, off I went to the middle net pens the next morning. There were two anglers fishing from the shore when I arrived, and I set up just up the shore from them. I cast out two rods, baited with Power Bait and waited for some action. I didn't see any fish rolling until I was there about an hour. Then one jumped right in front of me. Turned out he was on my line and threw the hook! It was raining hard by then, so I headed for home.

I had plans to do some fishing from shore at a couple of different locations this last week. This is something I often do in the winter months when my boat is covered up and out of service. Over the years I have refined the equipment I need for a day of shore fishing and it all fits in a backpack. I keep it handy and before I head out I just grab this bag and go. Inside is a foam leader holder with several pre-tied leaders. When I break off they are ready to be tied on. In a small box I have egg sinkers and barrel swivels. Also, there are several rod holders and jars of Power Bait. I also have a bag of marshmallows in case I want to use jarred shrimp or nightcrawlers. Also included in the "go bag" for a day of shore fishing are rags and fillet knives. There are gallon zip lock bags for fish. All I need now is to grab a couple of spinning rods. Now I am ready to go! This week's photo is of a nice rainbow caught at Crescent Beach at Coulee Dam.

I've made a couple of trips to Rocky Ford recently, and my wife reminded me of one our favorite experiences there. We were fishing at the bottom end where there are some pools. I had hooked a fish that ran upstream, around a rock and broke me off. I sat down to tie a new rig, and when I looked up I noticed that my indicator, that was still attached to the leader, was moving around in the pool. Huh, I thought maybe I can retrieve it. I dug out the largest Wooly Bugger in my box and tied it on. I made a couple of casts over the old leader and the hook slid up to the indicator. The fish was still on, and I managed to pull it in, release it and get my fly back. My wife Eileen was as amazed as I was, and probably wouldn't have believed it if she wasn't there. On my last trip to the Ford, I wasn't as lucky. I wasn't getting any interest in my my scud and indicator. I found an Egg Pattern that Darc at the Desert Fly Angler Shop had tied up for me and it worked, I finally got a bite!

The rainbow fishing on Lake Roosevelt has been terrific this winter. This may be the first place to try when I have the Smoker Craft ready to go.

Habitat for Humanity

LC Valley Habitat for Humanity Announces Applications Open for Clarkston Program

CAHR Program helps families address critical needs in their homes by focusing on safety, accessibility, and meeting municipal codes.

CLARKSTON, WA, Saturday, Jan. 20, 2024 -- L-C Valley Habitat for Humanity (LCV HFH) is pleased to announce that it has received a second round of funding for the Clarkston Affordable Home Repair (CAHR) Program.

LCV HFH is working in partnership with the City of Clarkston and Washington State Department of Commerce to offer the CAHR Program, which helps families address critical repairs in their homes. These repairs can help Clarkston houses within the city limits that need improvements to meet safety requirements, accessibility needs, or to bring them to current municipal codes.

"The second round of funding that allows our Clarkston Affordable Home Repair (CAHR) Program will enable 13 qualified residents, who need these critical repairs, to continue safely living in their homes," said Deb Snyder, Executive Director of the local Habitat. "We are very excited to announce the re-opening of the application process for this program."

Mayor Monika Lawrence also shared her thoughts on the program:

"The City of Clarkston is always looking for ways to help our individual residents and this Habitat program will offer funding to residents who need assistance keeping their homes safe. We are happy to partner with our local Habitat organization and the Washington State Department of Commerce to bring this opportunity to qualified people of all ages who need these critical repairs for their homes."

In addition to building new homes in the valley, LCV HFH helps by making affordable home repairs inside the city of Clarkston.

"By offering home repairs for no or low cost, the program will help preserve and ensure safe, decent, and affordable housing," Snyder said. "We appreciate the City of Clarkston and the Washington State Department of Commerce to open these opportunities for helping Clarkston families who are living on a fixed income and in need of some assistance."

The program is designed for critical home repairs such as roofing needs, plumbing issues, electrical hazards, and house structural issues in a home that is unsafe or otherwise in poor condition. Major criteria for selection into the CAHR Program is that the homeowner resides in the home as their primary residence. Call or visit our website for a full list of program requirements and criteria.

For three decades, the local Habitat organization has built 34 decent, affordable, energy efficient homes for families in Asotin and Nez Perce counties, giving hope to qualifying families in need by selling the homes with low or zero interest mortgages. LCV HFH staff are nearly finished with the 35th home and will soon announce a home dedication.

If you would like more information on this topic or are interested in becoming a partner family or a Habitat volunteer, please contact Deb Snyder at (509) 758-7396, by email at director@lewisclarkhabitat.org, or by visiting our CAHR program website at <https://1-cvalleyhabitat.org/cahr/>.

L-C Valley Habitat for Humanity

Our local affiliate first started in 1991 with a focus on building and renovating simple, decent, affordable housing for the residents of Nez Perce and Asotin Counties. To date, with the help of our valued community partners, generous contributions from donors, and countless hours of volunteer labor on home builds, we have been fortunate enough to construct 34 homes here in the LC Valley. We truly believe that our work is part of a greater community-wide effort to improve the place we all call home.

LC Valley Habitat for Humanity is a non-profit, faith-based organization devoted to changing lives through the practice of "giving people a hand up, not a hand out."

QLISPE RACEWAY 2024 DRAG SCHEDULE RELEASED

AIRWAY HEIGHTS — The former Spokane Raceway Park — now Qlispe Raceway owned by the Kalispel Tribe — has announced its 2024 schedule for a milestone season.

Thirty drag racing dates are on a schedule that marks the 50th anniversary of the motorsports complex in Airway Heights. The road course schedule has not yet been released and the oval track remains closed while awaiting possible updates.

Spokane Raceway Park officially opened on Memorial Day weekend, May 24-26 in 1974 when it staged the American Hot Rod Association Spring Nationals where the top titles were won by Don Prudhomme in funny car and top fuel by Gary Beck.

While those days are history and will not return, Qlispe's 2024 schedule has a handful of events featuring both nitro and blown alcohol cars in June, July and August.

June 21-23 is Nitro Jam that also features jet cars and fuel altereds. A month later (July 19-21) is Thunder Night with more alcohol-fueled cars.

And on what used to be one of the traditional AHRA World Finals dates — Aug. 9-10 — the program headlined by West Coast Pro-Mods, also features more alcohol cars, too.

The bread and butter of the track's operation are the sportsman or bracket racers who compete in a variety of classes. Eight points races are scattered through the season that stretches from April through September.

Qlispe offers 10 different sportsman classes for all kinds of vehicles ranging from motorcycles and snowmobiles to dragsters.

While these "bracket classes" are effectively able to compete against one another with a handicapped start, they do run according to similar elapsed times (ET's) and speeds. For instance if one car travels the quarter-mile in 14 seconds and another in 16, the slower driver is given a 2-second head start.

Another handful of races are termed "no-prep" which refers to the fact that the race surface is not prepared ahead of time with traction compound. No-prep track resembles an actual street.

Following a chassis certification on April 20, Qlispe's first race event is the following Friday, April 26 with No-prep Street racing. Several no-prep nights follow.

A notable change over the off-season was the hiring of Ben Zimmerman as the track's operations manager. Zimmerman has been readily available since his hiring to answer questions.

That "no-prep" track will be much improved in 2024 following an extensive grinding and resurfacing project that took place in the final few weeks of 2023.

"We hired TVC to come and surface grind the drag strip," Zimmerman wrote in a Facebook message. "They are taking out the bumps and low spots so the track is as smooth as it can be. Just one of the many upgrades this facility needs."

Spokane County purchased the track in 2008 and renamed it Spokane County Raceway, selling it to the Kalispel's in 2021. It sat idle for 2022 and opened to a full racing program in 2023.

Fifty years ago in 1974, Spokane Raceway Park opened with the AHRA Spring Nationals champion where Gary Beck won in top fuel over Don Garlits. -Photo from NWMNS.com collection
